

Stretch your health care dollars with a flexible spending account (FSA)

An FSA is a special health care expense account that lets you set aside money from your income — before taxes — to use on qualified health care costs. During your enrollment period, you decide how much to put in your FSA for the year. Your employer takes money from your paycheck in equal amounts during the year and puts it in your FSA. The best part is the money you put into your account isn't taxed — so each dollar goes further.

How to use your FSA

You can use your FSA debit card to pay for qualified expenses, and money will be pulled directly from your FSA, or pay for qualified expenses out of pocket and ask to be reimbursed.

To access your account, log in at anthem.com or use the Anthem Anywhere app. You can:

- Track your claims and FSA spending.
- Check your balance.
- Request reimbursement.
- Find a doctor.

The IRS regulates how you can use your FSA dollars. Check the complete list of qualifying expenses at irs.gov/pub502 (health care).

How health care FSAs work:

1. Your FSA contribution is taken from your paycheck in equal amounts during the year. However, you can spend the total amount you chose to put in for the year on day one of your plan.

2. Your FSA comes with a debit card to pay for qualified expenses. When you have a qualified expense, your FSA works with your health care plan to automatically reimburse you. You can pay for qualified expenses out of pocket and ask to be reimbursed.

3. You may carry over up to $500 of unused FSA dollars to the next plan year.

Important FSA tips

- Save your receipts when you spend FSA dollars. You might need them to verify your expenses or to get reimbursed.
- Plan carefully so you use all of the money in your FSA by the end of the plan year. If you don't use the money, you could lose it.
